

Matera 2019- European Capital of Culture

OPEN DESIGN SCHOOL WORKSHOP Open call for 15 participants

Deadline: 21st of December 2015

The Matera-Basilicata 2019 Foundation is pleased to launch an open call to participate in the first preparatory workshop for the Open Design School Matera, which will take place from 15 January through 28 February 2016.

As one of the cornerstones of the cultural program of Matera 2019, the Open Design School will be the first design school in Europe shaped around the principles of “Open Culture,” with a particular emphasis on the role of design as a distinctive form of cultural practice in the reconstruction processes of communities, cities and of society as a whole. ODS will be a school where one learns by doing: through a continuous process of creative exchange between art, science and technology, that is based on the idea that the sharing of knowledge must be central to the civic life of any given city. The school will be a place for interdisciplinary exchange in which learning will take place through prototyping and experimentation. It will bring together local and European designers, artists, artisans, web developers, diplomats, students, professionals and academics.

The first intensive workshop for the Open Design School workshop will take place in Matera from 15 January through 28 February 2016: the objective will be that of developing the concept for a highly innovative theatre/performance space inside an 18th century quarry –this space will host a portion of the activities for Matera 2019– and to contribute to the design and planning of the Open Design School and the Matera Foundation’s future site in Matera’s Sassi.
